Except around the knees, I don't feel that old.
It was a pretty good cake.

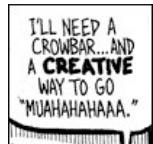

You never notice how much all that tin weighs until you're not carrying it around.

I'm not sure. I think there may have been some alcohol in this glass.

Alcohol? Surely not. Look, it's totally empty!

Hair of the dog in the morning.

The spousal unit says it's not the years. It's not even the mileage. It's the dents and dings you pick up in the parking lot.

(And the unsecured shopping carts. Gotta watch out for those, they're feral and they bite.)

Unsecured shopping carts and toddlers with baseball bats.

That's what I liked most about my old Saturn - body panels that could bounce back from dents and dings.

I'm going back to freelancing. And sleeping late.

You never notice how much all that tin weighs until you're not carrying it around.

Careful you don't float off, then. ^_^

That would be an ironic end to the story.

So you're saying that Dorothy doesn't need to follow you around with an oil can anymore?

I've never complained about attractive young women with oil cans.

Congratulations on making it to retirement age without getting on this list!

(My grandfather wasn't so fortunate; he ended up on this one in September of 1952. Law enforcement is not an easy career.)

Whuf. Well, that puts the hangover in perspective.

I am sorry for your loss.

Take care of those knees!

Knees don't hold up under adverse conditions as well as one might hope.

Congrats!

If standuponit made the cake, it's pretty much a give that it was good...

Hope you're enjoying retirement!
